THE COLLISION.

Additional Particulars of the Appalling Disaster.

"Nobody to Blame."

Poughkeepies 13 — Dr. Kett edge, of Fishkil Landing, one of the survivors of the Narraguasett, states that he stayed on board the steamer while the fire was progressing till ft got so hot that he had to jump everbeard, and during that time he did not see a single officer of the boats were not lowered until the lisms had made great progress. He said his son were picked up by a lost from the City of New Fork.

New London, C. in , 13.— If twelve bodies recovered from the wreck of the Narragansett, the following have been identified: F. J. Horton, lewelry drummer, Attlebors, Mass. Ym. Noyes, New York, A. Reed, East Jamsien, N. Y., Mrs. Wm. Stevens, Bos on Highwands, Mrs. J. K. Little, residence unknown; Wm. Noyes is a brother of Berjamin F. Noyes, of New Haven, eccentry imprisoned in New Jersey frestoning the insurance laws of the states.

The Narraganset was boarded by the assistant inspector of the light boats during Sanday morning. She liss in seven fathoms of water. It is the opinion of mariners that the Narragansett is broken in two. She is grounded in the western extremity of the shoals. But for her grounding there she would have sink out of sight. The master of the wreeking schooner reports that he inspected the wreek in diving armor this morning. A part of the port wheelmore of the Narragansett was picked up early this morning in the Race. The courses of the colding steames tay together, but had the Stonington counted the steamer for the incipit to signals of the Narragansett the accident would in all probability not occurred. No hodies were recovered today.

Catain Scott has just been down and examined the steamer. He thinks it can be raised. The bulwarks are in comparatively good condition. He found y, the body of a child about a year old, but nothing to identify it.

The Herald has the following special from Stonington, Conn: Cantain Young, the officer who was in temporary command of the Narragousett on the night of the disaster, during the past few days, has spent the entire time at the scene of the accident. He has said but little about the collision and subsequent loss of like except to express the belief that he was in his proper course, when the accident happened, and that when all the facts are known no blams whatever can be attached to him. He heard the whistle of the Stonington at intervals for several minutes before the abilities but sends and the said the abilities has sends and sends.
